Thought for today

Today's Gospel reading gives us scenes woven together by one powerful message. We see a tax collector called from his table, a desperate father pleading for his daughter, a suffering woman reaching out in faith, and a dead girl raised to life. Different people, different stories, yet one clear point.

Jesus comes not for the perfect, but for the needy; not for the seemingly righteous and respectable, but for those who know they need mercy, healing and life.

Perhaps we are being reminded that the Church is not a museum for the flawless. It is a place where those who have gone astray encounter grace, where wounded people find healing, and where the lost are befriended.

Surely that is good news for all of us?

Andrew Shipton

Volunteers Week has been celebrated in the UK since 1984, and this year runs from 2nd - 8th June. The week acts as a focal point for volunteer recognition and recruitment, highlighting the enduring importance of giving back to the community.

At All Saints many members of the congregation are heavily involved in voluntary activities, from roles with the church and other local and national organisations to looking after those in their community who may need help, for example with shopping or gardening.

Do take a moment to look at our 'button picture' in the north porch, read a little about why this is week is important to us, and remember in our prayers those who give so much of their time and skills to help others and support vital causes in their communities.

Ann Cross

P.S. This coming week at All Saints a group of us will start to repaint the railings that border the Garden of Remembrance. If you would like to join us please speak to me!

Two concerts coming up in July! We have 2 world-class Italian concert guitarists giving a recital on Wed 1st July at 1pm, tickets £10 each. Please mention this to friends & neighbours who might be interested and it'd be good to offer soft drinks & a glass of wine as the church benefits also from these takings - for this we need people free to serve drinks before the concert & in the interval. On Sat 4th July at 7pm There is a concert of Felling Male Voice & Swingbridge Choirs, more information shortly. If anyone is keen to lend a helping hand as people arrive (or leave) it can also be useful to have people being friendly & giving out flyers for other events such as the Farmers' Market etc soon afterwards. Please ask me for details! Thank you!
